

CLYDE REYNOLDS CARPENTER
VISITORS CENTER

New Building Campaign

THE FUTURE OF THE COLLEGE OF DESIGN BUILDING UPDATE 07

Donation: Clyde Reynolds Carpenter Visitors Center

After an illustrious career of more than 50 years in the UK College of Design, School of Architecture Professor Clyde Carpenter retired in 2021. To honor his dedicated service, the College has announced the naming of the Clyde Reynolds Carpenter Visitors Center in the new building.

As a Professor of Architecture, former Chair of the Department of Historic Preservation and Interim Dean of the College, Carpenter has been a long-time advocate of design education and the university as a whole. Many donors contributed to the $100,000 naming of the center, including industry partners, friends and former students of Carpenter's.

The Visitors Center is situated at the entrance to the new building and as part of the common area located in the highly visible hub where students from all programs can gather. Recognizing Carpenter at the helm of the new building further highlights his long-term influence at the UK College of Design.
